Re: Dental Hygienist, 4 Days per Week

Dear Dr. Sorensen,

Your posting says the practice is adding a fourth hygiene day because the periodontal maintenance schedule has outgrown your current team. That is the part of hygiene I spend most of my week on, and I would like to help you build it.

At Park Dental I see 8 to 9 patients a day on a 60-minute schedule and complete about 12 scaling and root planing cases a month. I am certified in local anesthesia and nitrous oxide in Minnesota and give my own infiltrations and inferior alveolar blocks, so the dentist is not pulled out of a procedure to numb my patients. I chart six-point probing on every adult recare and new patient and flag bleeding sites and pockets of 5 mm or more for your exam.

I have also worked on how findings are presented. When I started showing patients their intraoral camera photos next to their charting, accepted SRP treatment plans in my column went from 48% to 63% over 2024. Before Park Dental I floated between three HealthPartners clinics, so I adjust quickly to a new office's software, sterilization flow and way of running the morning huddle. I have used both Dentrix and Eaglesoft.

I would be happy to come in for a working interview day so you can see my chairside and charting. My schedule is flexible for a Tuesday or Thursday.

Sincerely,

Hannah Vang, RDH
